

A B S T R A C T

Non-self-combustible gaseous product, combustible with added air or equivalent oxygen source, is provided via electric-arc processing of wetted fragmented carbonaceous feedstock, in surroundings tolerant of extremely high temperatures, via simultaneous compression and electrical exposure of such feedstock thereto, thereby facilitating electrical arcing thereof and concurrent evolution of such combustible gas therefrom.